Everyday life is commonly characterised as uncomplicated and routine. But some everyday lives are experienced in prisons and conflict zones, or shaped by colonisation, repression or marginalisation. This symposium explores difficult and challenging forms of everyday heritage and history, with international keynote speakers Laura McAtackney and Timo Ylimaunu, and diverse perspectives from Western Australia and interstate.

Join the conversation at this one day symposium hosted by the Everyday Heritage ARC Linkage Project. The Symposium is a partnership event with the Australian Historical Association and the Congress of the Humanities, Arts, and Social Science (CHASS).
